FAHB Ltd's Privacy Policy

Introduction

When a client uses our services, they are trusting FAHB with their personal and financial information. We understand that this is a big responsibility and work diligently to protect their information in accordance with the Privacy Act 2020 (the Act).

Policy Statement

A key aspect of our business is obtaining and storing client information and other types of data. If we use service providers who are based overseas (for example, cloud software where servers are based in another country) we need to ensure that the provider meets the New Zealand privacy laws at all times.

We must also ensure that personal client information is held in a safe and secure way and disposed of securely when we have finished with it and/ or are no longer required to hold it.

We follow The Privacy Act's thirteen principles when collecting, using, and storing client's personal information:

	Personal information must only be collected when:
Principle 1	The collection is for a lawful purpose, connected with what FAHB does; and
	It is necessary to collect the information for that purpose.
Principle 2	 Personal information must usually be collected from the person that the information is about. In some instances, however, it will be appropriate to collect information from other people instead. For instance, when: Getting it from the person concerned would undermine the purpose of the collection
	 It is necessary for a public sector body to uphold or enforce the law
	The person concerned authorises collection from someone else.
Principle 3	When we collect personal information from the person the information is about, we must take reasonable steps to ensure that the person is aware of the following:
	Why the information is being collected
	Who will get the information
	• Whether the person has to give the information or whether it is strictly voluntary
	What will happen if the information is not provided.
	Sometimes there are good reasons for not letting a person know about the collection (e.g., if it would undermine the purpose of the collection or it is just not possible to inform the person).
Principle 4	Personal information must not be collected by unlawful means or by means that are unfair or unreasonably intrusive in the circumstances.
Principle 5	While it is impossible to stop all mistakes from happening, we must nevertheless ensure that there are reasonable safeguards in place to prevent loss, misuse, or disclosure of personal information.
Principle 6	In general, people have a right to ask for access to personal information that identifies them. However, there are situations where we can refuse to give access to information because doing so would:
	Endanger a person's safety
	Prevent detection and investigation of criminal offences

	Involve an unwarranted breach of someone else's privacy.
Principle 7	People have a right to ask us to correct information about themselves if they think it is incorrect. We are generally not obligated to change the information we hold, but people can request that we include in our records their views about what the correct information is.
Principle 8	Before we use or discloses personal information, we must take reasonable steps to check that the information is accurate, complete, relevant, up to date and not misleading.
Principle 9	We must not keep information for longer than is necessary for the purposes for which the information may be lawfully used.
Principle 10	We must use personal information only for the purpose for which it has been collected. Other uses are occasionally permitted, such as when it is necessary to enforce the law, or the use is directly related to the purpose for which the agency obtained the information.
Principle 11	We can only disclose personal information in limited circumstances, such as where another law requires us to disclose the information. We can also disclose information if we reasonably believe that:
	Disclosure is one of the purposes for which we got the information
	Disclosure is necessary to uphold or enforce the law
	Disclosure is necessary for court proceedings
	The person concerned authorised the disclosure
	• The information is going to be used in a form that does not identify the person concerned.
Principle 12	Where disclosure of personal information happens outside of New Zealand (i.e., where the third-party provider is based overseas), we must confirm that the provider meets the New Zealand privacy and data laws before entering into a business relationship with them. If they do not meet our criteria, we cannot allow them to hold our data.
Principle 13	FAHB cannot use the unique identifier given to a person by another business. For example, some businesses or agencies give people a 'unique identifier' instead of using their name (e.g., a driver's licence number, a student ID number, an IRD number, etc.). People are not required to disclose their unique identifier unless this is one of the purposes for which the unique identifier was set up or is directly related to those purposes.
